NOTES IN SEASON.

BRENTANO's have just ready three lectures delivered at the Royal Institution in February, 1900, by W. L. Courtney, under the title of "The Idea of Tragedy in Ancient and Modern Drama." A prefatory note has been furnished by A. W. Pinero.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly a story of early colonial life in New England, by Beulah Marie Dix, author of "Hugh Gwyeth," to be entitled "The Making of Christopher Ferringham," which is practically a chronicle of the Massachusetts of John Endicott.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish next month in their American fiction series "The Sentimentalists," by Arthur Stanwood Pier. They will also publish next month "A Lady of the Regency," a story of court life in England at the time of Queen Caroline and George IV., by Mrs. Stepney Rawson.

EATON & MAINS (The Methodist Book Concern) have published an interesting aid to the study of the Bible, entitled "The People's Bible Encyclopedia, Biographical, Geographical, Historical, and Doctrinal," edited by the Rev. Dr. Charles Randall Barnes of the New York University. The work is adequately illustrated.

MEYER BROS. & Co. have just ready the second number of Our Players' Gallery, which contains, together with interesting reading matter, the following portraits of well-known artists, reproduced in half tone: Sarah Bernhardt and Maude Adams in "l'Aiglon," Coquelin, Lulu Glaser, Grace George, Henrietta Crossman, scenes from "Quo Vadis," in all over fifty pictures. This publication is edited by W. J. Thorold, author of "Near the Throne."

GINN & COMPANY have nearly ready in their Athenaeum Press Series Carlyle's "On Heroes, Hero Worship and the Heroic in History," edited with notes and an introduction by Archibald MacMechan, professor of English in Dalhousie College, Halifax, Nova Scotia, who has received important aid from Carlyle's letters, hitherto unpublished, which were kindly supplied by a member of the author's family. The house will also publish in March "Wigwam Stories," by Mary C. Judd, intended for a reader in grammar schools. The book gives much information on Indians and has an additional interest in being illustrated by an Indian girl, a student of Howard Pyle.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a series of Musical Biographies intended for the general reader. The volumes thus far planned are "The Life of Schumann," by Richard Aldrich, a musical critic whose work is better known to the music-loving public of this city than his name, and who is particularly well versed in the literature of music; "The Life of Wagner," by W. J. Henderson; "The Life of Schubert," by W. H. Hadow, and "The Life of Bach," by Sir Hubert Parry. They also announce a new edition of Professor E. W. Scripture's "Thinking, Feeling, Doing," completely revised and enlarged; and a new volume of children's stories by Mrs. Ballington Booth to be entitled "Lights of Child Land," in which the stories will be divided under the sub-headings Fire-light, Moon-light, Star-light, Lamp-light, etc.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish on February 9 "The Sacred Fount," a striking study of contemporary English society, by Henry James. The author in this novel presents a remarkable series of character studies of a group of English men and women who meet for a week-end party at an English country house. They will issue during the spring "The Old New York Frontier," its wars with Indians and Tories, its missionary schools, pioneers and land titles, 1616-1800, by Francis W. Halsey of the New York Times. Among the unpublished material to which he has had access are the Sir William Johnson manuscripts in the New York State Library, the Brant manuscripts in the Library of the Historical Society of Wisconsin, and extracts from George Clinton's papers in the New York State Library, now in course of publication by the State Historian, Mr. Hugh Hastings. These manuscripts comprise altogether about 100 volumes. A new map has also been prepared with due attention to the results of recent discoveries, together with fourteen full-page illustrations, including the reproduction of some rare Indian portraits in the Lenox Library. In March will appear "A Prisoner Among the Filipinos," by Alfred Sonnichsen, who was captured at Malolos and for eleven months was held a prisoner in the northern part of the Island of Luzon. A new novel by Imogen Clark, entitled "God's Puppets," with scene in New York City, is also announced.

The author says three leading motives prompted the writing of this story, namely, a desire to point out the dangers arising from young folks thinking they are in love when they are in reality impressed by a passing fancy; to show by comparison of opposite characters the difference between a butterfly existence and an intellectual and spiritual life; and to demonstrate the results of infidelity and sin. The scene is the Cumberland Mountains of middle Tennessee.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 26, 1901.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, should reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BOOKS OF 1900.

IN glancing through the full and systematized list of the books of 1900, given herewith, the reader must realize that the prosperity of the great mass of the American people and their intelligence afford the best market for literature that there has perhaps ever been in the world. The production of books during the last year of the century exceeded that of all previous years. With a presidential election furnishing daily reading matter for many months of the year, the publishers still had courage to bring out books, and 1900 may rank as a successful publishing year, and even as one of more than average literary importance. The books of a year always reflect its important events and questions. The great questions before the world in 1900 were the special issues of the presidential campaign—money, trusts, expansion, government of conquered territory and the great international questions summed up under the name of China. The Paris Exposition led to many publications, and there were many retrospections and prophecies relating to the closing and to the opening centuries.

Death claimed two men who had made the nineteenth century think—John Ruskin and Friedrich Nietzsche. They were absolutely independent thinkers whose avowed object was to reform all modern culture and to bring about a new period in the history of human civilization. Also among the dead are Max Muller, the noted philologist and student of the religions of the world; James Martineau, Arthur S. Sullivan, George Grove, R. D. Blackmore, Charles Dudley Warner, Richard Hovey, Stephen Crane, and the celebrated war correspondents George W. Steevens and Aleck Forbes.

We put on record in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY 6356 books, as against 5321 of the preceding year, the highest total we have yet reached—the nearest to it being the figures of 1896, when we reached 5703, falling short of this year 653 entries.

These figures represent to some extent an actual increase in production and to some extent more thorough work in recording entries outside the regular channels of trade. They are lessened, on the other hand, by the transfer from our regular Weekly Record to subsidiary lists (not included in these statistics) of several classes of books, notably foreign books imported, not in editions but in small lots, the result of this last-named exclusion being especially noticeable in the statistics of books in English imported into this country.

The number of books received for record was 3042, 327 more than in 1899, when the total was 2715. Other books put on record from publishers' notes, copyright entries, etc., made 3314, which added to 3042 gives 6356, the total of the year.

The quality of the books published was distinctly better than it had been for three years past, notably in the departments of fiction, biography, fine arts and history. A special feature of the year was the re-issue of celebrated books in fine and carefully edited editions. Almost every author whose name has outlived the copyright restrictions has been put into attractive permanent form, and many American authors have edited their works for their publishers.

The wars that marked the closing century brought forth a long list of books on South Africa, China, the Philippines and the West Indies; and there was a vast number of books of which the keynote was social problems, owing to the breaking of conventional shackles, the wonderful inventions, and the great spread of educational privileges which have marked the century. The wonderful business prosperity of the past few years has engendered greed, luxury and a lack of patriotic devotion to the ideals for which America stood during the best part of the closing century. This state of public morality was emphasized by some of our best thinkers in some very important books.

The first table below gives in classes the approximate figures of the book production of the United States in 1900 and those of 1899 for comparison.

This second table attempts to show the number of books manufactured in the United States in 1900—first those by American authors, second those by English and other foreign authors made in this country according to the demands of copyright law, and third the books in English imported bound or in sheets. These three classes must equal the totals of the former table. It is almost impossible to trace every book from its author to its final publication, and we do not claim that our statistics are absolutely correct. The table shows 3878 books by American authors, against 3626 of 1899; 1388 books by English or other foreign authors against 571 of last year; and only 1090 books, or sheets, imported, against 1124 of 1899. The reprints were as usual heaviest in fiction.

FICTION.

It is impossible to select about half of one hundred from the six hundred new contributions to the most popular department of literature without running counter to the theories, tastes and convictions of many readers. We do not presume to say the books specially mentioned are the only notable novels of 1900. We aim first to tell which books have been distinctive factors in the successful publishing of the year, and then to give a few special words to a very small number of novels of which the claim to lasting notice is founded on the only permanent elements of book-life—style and large human interest.

As in 1899, several American novels proved great financial and popular successes. Just how far such success is founded on intrinsic merit, on circumspect and generous advertising, on imitation, so strong an element in American character, or on the general prosperity which gives to American women especially more time to read than is enjoyed by their sisters of other lands, who have less rights and more duties—time alone can determine. We do not compare their merits, but describe them in the order in which they were published.

Ralph Connor's "Black Rock" and "Sky-Pilot" had appeared at the turn of the year, but did not make their way to their great success until 1900. Temperance is their keynote. The author is Rev. Charles W. Gordon, himself a "sky-pilot" of a live church in Canada. His books have been pronounced "virile, true, tender, humorous, pathetic, spiritual, wholesome." Mary Johnstone's "To Have and to Hold" met with phenomenal favor. It is a story of the early years of Colonial Virginia, opening in 1621 with the arrival from England of a consignment of maidens to be sold to the Colonists for wives at the price of 120 pounds of tobacco. "To Have and to Hold" is a sort of Colonial "Taming of the Shrew," though the shrew is not a shrew by nature, but rather by accident. Miss Johnstone's style is more virile than that of many of her masculine fellow-craftsmen, and its beginning is brilliant, but towards the end it lacks the fineness of touch of her "Prisoner of Hope." In "Senator North" Gertrude Atherton gave a composite portrait of our best types of public men. The scene is Washington at the time of the outbreak of the Spanish-American war. The public sentiment of the time, especially of the party opposed to the war, is well given. Booth Tarkington followed up his "Gentleman from Indiana" with "Monsieur Beaucaire," showing talent of a totally different order in his picture of Bath, the historic English watering place, in the days of Louis xv. The ambition and unrest of the "new" American woman were finely treated by Robert Grant in "Unleavened Bread;" and Charles Frederic Goss in "The Redemption of David Corson" read a man's soul and desires with equal frankness and also contrasted strongly the religion of dogma by which paradise is lost and the religion of spirit by which alone it is regained. Teaching much the same lesson, and with the same wealth of nature study, came James Lane Allen's "Reign of Law," a tale of the Kentucky hemp-fields. Its study of the young farmer who is a seer and goes to college to become a minister is poetic and strong. His gradual awakening to the knowledge of various creeds, the first undermining of his faith and his final reconciliation to life and true religion show some of this practised writer's most artistic work.

"Eben Holden," a tale of St. Lawrence County, in Northern New York, by Irving Addison Bacheller, took the reading public by storm last July and its success continues unabated. Horace Greeley figures in its pages, which also contain a very powerful description of the battle of Bull Run and many other incidents of the Civil War. "The Kite Trust," by Lebbeus Harding Rogers, was the framework for valuable information on labor, capital, wealth, the silver question, taxes, revenue, national debt, protection, commerce, strikes, banking, and many more of the great business problems of the closing century. Maurice Thompson in "Alice of Old Vincennes" gave a graphic picture of Indiana in the early days of the century, and made it telling with mystery and fighting and some very welcome laughter. Both Charles Clark Munn's "Uncle Terry," the light-house keeper of the Maine coast, the personification of kindness and Yankee shrewdness, and Charles Felton Pidgin's "Quincy Adams Sawyer" bring out the difference between the ideals of New England a generation ago and those of the present un-American, money-mad community, and both are steadily gaining in appreciation.

Also among the "sellers" must be remembered Egerton Castle's "The Pride of Jennico" and "Young April;" and "Elizabeth and Her German Garden," of which the authorship was very much discussed.

Other novels of merit distinctly American in tone were "Philip Winwood," by Robert Neilson Stephens, a sketch of the domestic history of an American captain in the War of Independence, covering the years from 1763 to 1786; "In Circling Camps," a romance of the Civil War, by J. A. Altsheler, beginning with the inauguration of Lincoln, with a Southern hero who fights for the Union though often seeing a divided duty; "Stringtown on the Pike," by John Uri Lloyd, a Kentucky story of the Civil War; Emerson Hough's "Girl at the Halfway House," describing the life of an educated Southern girl who goes West after the reverses of the Civil War and suffers many trials on government lands; "The Voice of the People," in which Ellen Glasgow deals with the recent social and political life of the South, and deals with it in an almost audaciously virile and plain spoken manner; and "Red Blood and Blue," by Harrison Robertson, of which Central Tennessee is the scene during the Spanish-American war.

F. Marion Crawford wrote "In the Palace of the King," a historical romance of the time of Philip II. of Spain, giving the history of the Inquisition and its high-handed interference with personal liberty. William Barry in "Arden Massiter" described a young English socialist of high birth who went to Rome for a socialist paper and met brigands, conspirators and statesmen and gave the author opportunity to show much learning. In "Uncanonized," a romance of English monastic life in the 13th century, Margaret Horton Potter did some brilliant work; and a story that has not yet come into its own of the appreciation it will surely get is Henry B. Fuller's "The Last Refuge," a Sicilian romance full of thoughts on Italian scenery, art, religion, politics and beauty of every kind, and also a fine study of the human soul as it develops in every land. Humor and satire also brighten its pages written in that perfect English for which the author of "The Chevalier of Pensieri Vani" is distinguished. Hervey White's "Quicksand," a study of the influence of environment and also of the danger of crushing individuality in children of every age will also be heard of later.

A feature of the year was the reissue of successful American novels in fine illustrated editions. Among these were David Harum; Page's "Old Gentleman of the Black Stock;" Mrs. Helen Hunt Jackson's "Ramona;" Mrs. Goodwin's "Head of a Hundred;" Mrs. Greene's "Vesty of the Basins;" Connor's "Black Rock" and "Sky-Pilot;" and Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin's "Penelope's English Experiences" and "Penelope's Progress."

Volumes of short stories by American authors that were widely noticed were "The Soft Side," by Henry James; "Whilomville Stories" and "Wounds in the Rain," posthumous works by Stephen Crane; Gilbert Parker's "The Lane That Had No Turning;" Jack London's "The Son of the Wolf" (Alaska and the Yukon); Frederic Remington's "Men with the Bark On" (Spanish-American war); Charles Warren's "The Girl and the Governor" (political life in Massachusetts); Cy Warman's "Short Rails" (railroad life); Mark Twain's "The Man Who Corrupted Hadleyburg and other stories and essays;" Mary E. Wilkins' "Love of Parson Lord;" George Ade's "More Fables;" and Joaquin Miller's "True Bear Stories."

The quality of the fiction by English authors was distinctly good. Perhaps some of the finest work of the year appeared in Barrie's "Tommy and Grizel," the sequel to "Sentimental Tommy," which had been awaited for four years. It is a wonderful study of temperament, especially the temperament of the artistic, erratic genius. Mrs. Humphry Ward also did some notable psychological work in "Eleanor," of which the scene is Italy and the theme a woman's jealousy, and incidentally the perfect system of the Roman Catholic Church. Marie Corelli shows great but wholly ill-balanced power in dealing with established religion, Roman and Protestant, in "The Master Christian," in which her tirades against the church become often personal and shrewish. There is much finer work in "Boy," a sad tale of a young life ruined by an erratic education and a bad mother. Mrs. Steel in "Voices in the Night" and "The Hosts of the Lord," gave two of her fine studies of East India, the latter especially valuable for the reflections upon the miracle that keeps great hosts of native Indians subject to a handful of British rulers.

Books showing rare knowledge of human nature and a fearless use of strong language for virile thoughts are Maurice Hewlett's "Richard Yea-and-Nay," a new version of the history of Richard Coeur de Lion; and Phillpott's "Sons of the Morning," a study of a woman's love for two men answering to different idiosyncrasies of her physical and mental nature, a nature larger than that possessed by either of the men. Both these books have the elements of continued book-life.

Of very fine texture also is "Lord Jim," a story of the unknown Malaysian islands, by Joseph Conrad, an intensely human tale of deep psychological insight; and equally well done and totally different is "Sunningwell," by Francis Warre Cornish, a study of a cathedral town, worthy of Mrs. Gaskell. "An Englishwoman's Love Letters" are "Portuguese Sonnets" in prose, only the love was offered to a man who for some untold reason scorned it and the end is tragedy. The author is unknown, and there is much speculation about him or her. The letters are full of criticism on art and literature.

Grant Allen's posthumous novel, "Hilda Wade," was finished by his friend, Dr. Conan Doyle. It introduces a fine woman character and follows a learned scientist to South Africa; John Oliver Hobbes wrote the sequel of "The School for Saints" under the title "Robert Orange," and the conversations between the Catholic hero and Disraeli are full of philosophy and knowledge of society and its problems; Israel Zangwill's "The Mantle of Elijah" introduces a self-made man of great ability, and brings out the contrast between his public and home life; and Miss Braddon wrote a fine study of the beginnings of Methodism in "The Infield." Novels worth a careful reading were McIlwaine's "Fate the Fiddler," a stirring novel of Australian life; and "Red Pottage," by Marie Cholmondeley.

The short stories by English, Irish and Scotch writers included David Lyall's "Heather from the Brae;" Seumas MacManus's "Donegal Fairy Stories" and "The Bewitched Fiddle;" Jane Barlow's "From the Land of the Shamrock;" S. R. Crockett's "The Stickit Minister's Wooing;" William E. Norris' "An Octave;" A. T. Quiller-Couch's "Historical Tales from Shakespeare" and "Old Fires and Profitable Ghosts;" and Miss Fowler's "Cupid's Garden."

The notable translations of the year were Tolstoi's "Resurrection," a story of startling realism, in which the author lays the sins of the world chiefly upon the existing forms of government and ecclesiastical authority;

Sienkiewicz's "Knights of the Cross," a story of the reign of Vladislav of Poland at the close of the fourteenth century; Zola's "Fruitfulness," an offset to Tolstoi's "Kreutzer Sonata;" and such little gems as Chabot's "The Dancing Master;" Coppée's "Tales for Christmas and other Seasons," and Bourget's "Domestic Dramas."

EDUCATION.

In these days of unrest every one has a theory of education by which all ills will be remedied and all the world become learned and happy. The year brought many of these schemes to be started in kindergartens and to work out sometimes to hypnotism, mesmerism or Christian Science. "The Individual: a Study of Life and Death," by the naturalist, Nathaniel Southgate Shaler, "is a plea for an education as regards the place of the individual life in the whole of nature, which shall be consistent with what we know of the universe," and he has ably stated his original convictions on many subjects. James H. Baker also offered papers and addresses on "Education and Life;" and Thomas Alexander Ormond expounded "The Foundations of Knowledge." The series of monographs prepared for the United States exhibit at Paris was published, ably edited by N. M. Butler.

Very able studies of childhood were "The Bibliography of a Baby," by Milicent Washburn Shinn; "Concerning Children," by Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Stetson; "The Child: a Study in the Evolution of Man," by A. F. Chamberlain; and "Nature Study and the Child," by Charles B. Scott. A very interesting little book was devoted to "Viola Olerich," the famous baby scholar, who was born in Des Moines, Iowa, in 1897, and adopted by Professor Olerich, School Superintendent of Iowa, who wished to try on her his new theory of education. At the age of three poor little Viola could read, write, draw and figure in geometry, and also spoke French and German. F. C. Spencer wrote of the "Education of the Pueblo Child: a Study in Arrested Development;" C. F. Thwing explained "College Administration;" Max Bennett Thrasher gave the history of "Tuskegee Institute for Colored Students," of which Booker T. Washington is the principal; and Rev. W. Tuckwell wrote "Reminiscences of Oxford," a book full of delightful thoughts on the world-renowned colleges of Oxford and many humorous recollections of famous men of the past and present.

Woman's special place in the world and her fitness and unfitness for her natural and enforced occupations also furnished the subject-matter for eight or ten practical and instructive books.

THEOLOGY AND RELIGION.

Though nearly four hundred books of the year must be classed in this department not one stands out as a book of the year. There were many editions of the Bible and of separate books of the Bible, many volumes of sermons and many works endeavoring to prove that the present time is more concerned with true religious thought than is generally believed. Many volumes also taught a holy life and unselfish Christian conduct. Many works showing deep erudition are classified under the heading Bible.

Amory Bradford Howe in "The Age of Faith" took an optimistic view of the religious doubt of the age; John Burroughs startled many with "The Light of Day," religious discussions and criticisms from the naturalist's point of view, in which he dwelt specially on the spiritual insight of Matthew Arnold; and the teachings of Thomas Huxley; Josiah Strong spoke to the point as ever in "Religious Movements for Social Betterment;" and George C. Lorimer studied "Christianity in the Nineteenth Century." An interesting book was "Faiths of Famous Men in Their Own Words," alphabetically arranged by John Kenyon Kilbourn, with a full index of scientists, statesmen, philosophers, authors, etc., who have held the opinions gathered from out-of-the-way sources with some pains and great ingenuity. Arthur Lillie's "Buddha and Buddhism," and F. J. Snell's "Wesley and Methodism" were added to the World's Epoch Makers. Ian Maclaren gave practical studies of Congregational life under the title "Church Folks;" Amos R. Wells wrote "A Business Man's Religion;" "The Women of the Bible" were written of by eminent divines; and Mrs. Whitney wrote a characteristic book on "The Integrity of Christian Science." A thoroughly original work was Paul Carus' "History of the Devil," tracing the idea of evil from the earliest time to the present day. A good translation was made of Friedrich Nippold's "The Papacy in the Nineteenth Century;" Rev. John Thein made an "Ecclesiastical Dictionary;" and a classified list of works relating to philosophy, religion, evolution, occultism, Christian science, and all the many forms of belief and speculation was entitled "Bibliography of Progressive Literature."

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

At the close of a century the retrospective and prophetic voices are heard in almost equal strength. The United States, an infant when the century opened, stands to-day abreast of all the older countries in wealth, energy, and opportunity. The qualities that brought us to our present position have not distinguished us during the closing years of the century, and in the immediate past many voices have spoken to point out unsuspected dangers and to offer profitable warning and advice. At the beginning of the century Thomas Jefferson stood for the ideal Americanism and it is fitting that three works of the year make it possible to learn his words about his country and her people. To sum up, the "Jeffersonian Encyclopædia" offers a complete classified arrangement in alphabetical order under 9000 entries of Jefferson's thoughts on government, politics, law, morals, religious and personal freedom and everything on which the life or death of a nation rests. Books that can be studied with profit are John Bascom's "Growth of Nationality in the United States;" Ray Stannard Baker's "Our New Prosperity;" E. H. Sears' "An Outline of Political Growth in the Nineteenth Century;" Reinsch's "World Politics at the End of the Nineteenth Century as Influenced by the Oriental Situation;" Percy T. Magan's "Peril of the Republic;" W. Jethro Brown's "The New Democracy;" O. J. Smith's "The Coming Democracy;" G. Sewall Boutwell's "Crisis of the Republic;" Brookes Adams' "America's Economic Supremacy;" Basil A. Bouroff's "The Impending Crisis;" and J. A. Conwell's "Our Nation's Need."

Various plans for future prosperity and content were outlined in David A. Wells' "Theory and Practice of Taxation;" Andrew Carnegie's "The Gospel of Wealth;" J. Bates Clark's "Distribution of Wealth;" Spahr's "America's Working People;" A. T. Pierson's "Forward Movements of the Last Half Century;" and Jacob A. Riis' "A Ten Years' War," an account of battles with the slums of large cities, notably New York.

The problems of expansion were considered by Whitelaw Reid, Talcott Williams and Josiah Strong, and also by a small host of others to be found in the list elsewhere. There were upwards of thirty books on Trusts and Corporations, those of William Miller Collier, Loren L. Hopkins, J. W. Jenks being of special importance. The great fact that only personal character can remedy the peculiar dangers of over-civilization and the great extremes of wealth and poverty it engenders were dwelt upon in two books on "Brook Farm," one of the great experiments of social regeneration undertaken half a century ago; in Alfred Russel Wallace's "Studies Scientific and Social;" and in R. R. Bowker's "The Arts of Life," which formulates a philosophy aiming to bring out the highest possibilities of man's powers and to encourage his most far-reaching ideals.

An anomaly amidst wars and rumors of wars was "The Peace Conference at the Hague" in 1899, which has now been reported in its bearings on international law and policy by G. F. W. Holls. A contribution to the history of American politics was J. R. Spears' "The American Slave Trade," an account of its origin, growth and suppression; and Tolstoi's "The Slavery of Our Times" treated of modern industrialism, an even more cruel form of slavery still existing and increasing even in America. A useful book often needed is J. H. Hopkins's "History of Political Parties in the United States" since the foundation of the government. "Clearing-Houses, their History, Methods, and Administration," by J. G. Cannon, also gave some much-needed information.

English superiority in the details of government were made plain in Spencer Wilkinson's "War and Policy;" and Lloyd H. Demarest's two studies of Colonial government in New Zealand, entitled "Newest England" and "A Country Without Strikes."

Several of the humorous books of the year showed up to laughter the foibles of political and social systems. "Mr. Dooley's Philosophy" is inimitable in its good-humored, common-sense handling of the current topics and questions of the hour in both hemispheres; William Allen Rogers' "Hits at Politics" is a series of cartoons full of needed lessons; "Diedrich Dinkelspiel" held two volumes of "gonversations" on current events; S. E. Kiser's "Georgie" philosophized on almost every subject; and Guy Wetmore Carryl's "Mother Goose for Grown Ups" was full of witty morals and funny pictures.

BIOGRAPHY AND MEMOIRS.

The contributions to American biography dealt extensively with men who have had great influence on the life of the nation. Paul Jones was the subject of three works: Augustus C. Jones based his life of the founder of the American navy on fourteen years' researches in England, France, and St. Petersburg, as well as in this country, and discovered many hitherto unknown chapters in the life of the most romantic figure of American Revolutionary history, also providing his book with a valuable bibliography; Cyrus Townsend Brady told the story of Paul Jones as fascinatingly as he wrote "For the Freedom of the Sea;" and James K. Otis also furnished a biography of the noted sailor. Charles Francis Adams wrote the life of the father whose name he inherits; Frederick Bancroft furnished the life of William H. Seward, especially treating of the events that led to the Civil War and the adjustment of the "Alabama" claim; Moorefield Storey treated the same great questions in his "Life of Charles Sumner;" and the slavery question was also handled with knowledge and sympathy in John White Chadwick's "Theodore Parker." Also treating of dark days for the United States are six books on Abraham Lincoln: Ida M. Tarbell's "Life of Abraham Lincoln;" Paul Selby's "The Life, Stories, and Speeches of Abraham Lincoln;" William O. Stoddard's "Lincoln at Work;" Collis and Ingersoll's "The Religion of Abraham Lincoln;" Henry Watterson's "Abraham Lincoln," an oration delivered in Chicago in 1895; and "Abraham Lincoln: His Book." A bibliography of Lincolniana has also just been issued. No less than four books were devoted to the life of Dwight L. Moody, the great and successful Evangelist.

The long expected "Life and Letters of Phillips Brooks," begun by his brother and completed by A. V. G. Allen of Harvard University, is a beautifully moulded piece of real literature. Charles H. Franklin's "Life of Francis Parkman;" Carl Hovey's "Stonewall Jackson;" and Mrs. Wetmore's "Last of the Great Scouts" (Buffalo Bill), all treat of bygone scenes of American life. "The Life and Correspondence of Rufus King" was completed; two volumes were issued of Lamb's "Biographical Dictionary of the United States;" and under the title of "Eccentricities of Genius" Major James Burton Pond published memories of famous men and women of the platform and stage, giving sketches of well-known people in almost every line of occupation. In these days when American girls seem ever ready to give their fortunes for foreign titles a timely book is Virginia Tatnall Peacock's "Famous American Belles of the Nineteenth Century."

From England comes an epoch-making biography, "The Life and Letters of Thomas Huxley," an interesting personal narrative by his son. The correspondence with Darwin and with Charles Kingsley is very fully given and forms a valuable addition to the century's scientific history. Mitchell P. Chalmers has also a "Thomas Huxley," giving specially an account of Huxley's contributions to biology and to educational and social problems. Two lives of Oliver Cromwell were also brought out, one by John Morley, giving an absolutely correct picture of the conditions of Cromwell's time, and the other by Theodore Roosevelt, offering a vigorous picture of the character of Oliver Cromwell. Lord Rosebery's "Napoleon—a Phase," showed this statesman's great sense of justice and knowledge of affairs past and present.

The year was specially rich in biographies of literary men, among them Basil Champney's "Coventry Patmore;" John Glyde's "Life of Edward Fitz Gerald," with introduction by Edward Clodd; and M. H. Spielmann's "John Ruskin." Biographies of noted clergymen were also many. Spurgeon's "Autobiography" was completed; a fine life of James Martineau the Unitarian leader appeared immediately after his death, the work of A. W. Jackson; the "Life of Archbishop Benson" was written by his son; "The Story of Dr. Pusey's Life" was by the author of "Charles Lowder;" the Dean of St. Paul wrote a life of his son "Henry Hart Milman;" and there was a new edition of the "Life and Times of Cardinal Newman," by Wilfrid Ward. Two lives of Wagner appeared, both excellent, one by Houston Stewart Chamberlain, and the other by Charles A. Lidgey. There was also a "Life of Sir Arthur Sullivan," by Arthur Lawrence, which appeared just before his much regretted death. Theodore Baker's "Biographical Dictionary of Musicians" must also be mentioned here. The great "Dictionary of National Biography" was also completed with the century which has furnished so many great names for its pages.

In translations came Balzac's "Letters to Madame Hanska;" "Cecil de Courtot's Memoirs" (The French Revolution); "Memoirs of the Countess Potocka" (Napoleonic reminiscences dating back to 1794 and also treating of the Second Empire); and Clara Tschudi's "The Great Napoleon's Mother."

HISTORY.

History constantly overlaps the boundaries of Biography and this year also encroaches upon the field of Political Science, for the year has brought many historical studies, of China and South Africa especially, that had their origin in the new political problems that make all information about these countries of vital importance. Here it does not seem so important to keep apart the work of the American and the foreign author as to keep together what has been produced on certain countries and certain periods. Fifty-three works on South Africa, the Boers and President Kruger, and thirty-two directly bearing on China, its history and its future, cannot be separately enumerated. They have almost all a standing far beyond books made for a necessity of the hour. America is more directly concerned with China, and among the books all Americans may read with profit are Alfred Thayer Mahan's "The Problem of Asia and its Effect Upon International Policies;" Rounseville Wildman's "China's Open Door," a succinct history of China from earliest days; Allen S. Will's "World-Crisis in China;" Chester Holcombe's "The Real Chinese Question;" Alexis Krausse's "The Far East: its History and its Questions;" Pierre Leroy Beaulieu's "The Awakening of the East;" and P. S. Reinsch's "World Politics at the End of the Nineteenth Century." A full list of all the literature of the year on China and South Africa appears under these headings in the Cumulative Index elsewhere in this issue.

Distinctive contributions to American history were A. G. Bradley's "Fight with France for North America;" "Prehistoric Implements," a description of the ornaments, utensils and implements of pre-Columbian man in America, edited by Warren K. Moorehead; P. De Roo's "History of America Before Columbus," founded on manuscripts discovered while searching for documents for a history of Alexander VI., a work containing very valuable bibliographies and lists of sources; George Bryce's "Remarkable History of the Hudson Bay Company;" and Charles West's "The Northwest Under Three Flags."

John Bach McMaster published the fifth volume of his monumental history, covering the history of the people of the United States from the Revolution to the Civil War, and giving the history of slavery and the Abolition party as it has not yet been given to the world; and Edward Eggleston's "The Transit of Civilization from England to America in the Seventeenth Century" is one of the most important additions to American history made in recent years. The fine art edition of John Fiske's "Old Virginia and Her Neighbors" also contains most valuable historical material in the line of portraits, manuscripts, etc.

Very important contributions to English history were Charles Gross's "The Sources and Literature of English History from the Earliest Times to about 1485," and Guy Carleton Lee's "Source-Book of English History," leading documents with illustrative material from contemporary writers, and a bibliography of sources. The work covers from the first mention of Britain by ancient historians to the last great treaty with the Boers of South Africa. Andrew Lang brought out the first volume of "A History of Scotland," which has been pronounced good by those who know; and Julian Stafford Corbett continued his history of the British Navy under the title "The Successors of Drake." In view of all the troubles in the Colonies, Henry C. Morris's "History of Colonization from the Earliest Times to the Present Days" is timely.

"The Rulers of the South, Sicily, Calabria, Malta," is F. Marion Crawford's companion volume to "Ave Roma Immortalis;" Stephen Crane's book on "The Great Battles of the World," on which he was at work when he died, was finished and published; Archibald R. Colquhoun's "Russia Against India" and Edmund Noble's "Russia and the Russians" offer much new material; and four important works on Egyptian and Babylonian history also appeared, two by Budge, one by Radau and one by Morris.

Valuable works of reference were Charles Eugene Little's "Cyclopædia of Classified Dates with Exhaustive Index;" and "The Library of Historic Characters and Famous Events of All Nations and All Ages," in twelve volumes, edited by A. R. Spofford, Frank Weitenkamp, and John P. Lamberton.

POETRY AND DRAMA.

Original Poetry of merit was missing on both sides of the world. The few exceptions in American books were Lloyd Mifflin's "The Fields of Dawn and Later Sonnets;" Henry Jackson Van Dyke's "Toiling of Felix;" and "Songs from Vagabondia," by Bliss Carmen and Richard Hovey. English verse of some beauty was Oliver Herford's "Overheard in a Garden;" Francesca Alexander's "The Hidden Servants;" and Stephen Phillips' "Marpessa." Excellent compilations were Stopford Brooke's "Treasury of Irish Poetry in the English Tongue;" Ina Russelle Warren's "Cupid's Court," a collection of choicest love poems of the English language; and "The Lawyers' Alcove," poems by, for, and about lawyers. "The Listening Child," compiled by Lucy W. Thatcher from the whole range of English literature, shows knowledge of literature and sympathy with children. There were three pretty editions of Markham's "The Man With the Hoe," the much debated poem of last year; and "Liberty Poems" contained outbursts of poetic patriotism on the Spanish-American War and its complications. The department of Drama was unusually well provided for. Stephen Phillips is said to have given the stage the best it has received since Shakespeare in his drama of "Herod," in which one of the great ones of the earth is made to live and breathe again. All the successes of the day were published with many portraits of the actors that were making them known to the public. Of such were Pinero's "Gay Lord Quex;" Rostand's "L'Aiglon," in French and English; Wagner's "Nibelungen Ring;" and A. Thomas' "Alabama." W. D. Howells had four little plays and Bernard Shaw two. The department of Poetry and Drama was heavily stocked with new editions. The reprints of the poets, however, come under Literature.

LITERARY HISTORY AND MISCELLANY.

The year was a specially notable one for fine editions of standard authors, both American and English. The American authors carefully edited and put into permanent editions were Aldrich, Mark Twain, James Fenimore Cooper, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Robert Ingersoll, John Lothrop Motley, Edgar Allan Poe, Frank R. Stockton, Charles Sumner, Thomas W. Higginson, Edward Everett Hale and Theodore Roosevelt.

A long expected literary work made its appearance in Stedman's "An American Anthology, 1787-1899," a companion volume to "A Victorian Anthology," beginning with a critical survey of American poetry, which is followed by selections illustrating this survey, an epoch-making addition to American letters. Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard University has been unreservedly praised in high places for his "Literary History of America," in which he traces the ways in which the native thought and character of America has diverged from those of England, and then reviews American literature, as a distinct product, from Cotton Mather to Walt Whitman. A fine study was made of "The Clergy in American Life and Letters," by Dan Dulany Addison, who presents the literary work of such men as Dwight, Channing, Parker, Bushnell, Beecher, and Phillips Brooks in its two-fold aspect as the expression of religious life and national thought. William Dean Howells in "Literary Friends and Acquaintance" gave a sympathetic personal retrospect of American authorship, especially important for its history of the Atlantic Monthly and Harper's Magazine, and for Mr. Howells' impressions of the men who first gave America a national literature.

Fine critical literary work by American authors is embodied in the following books: Hamilton Wright Mabie's "William Shakespeare, Poet, Dramatist, and Man;" Charles Allen's "Notes on the Bacon-Shakespeare Question;" May Alden Ward's "Prophets of the Nineteenth Century" (Carlyle, Ruskin, Tolstoi); and Porter and Clarke's "Browning Study Programmes."

There were a dozen or more books of advice about reading, among which A. R. Spofford's "Book for All Readers" received much comment.

The year also brought some very useful bibliographical work. The long-announced "United States Catalogue," edited by George F. Danforth and Marian E. Potter, and published by its projector, M. W. Wilson, appeared, giving under an alphabet by author the short titles of books in print in this country in 1899 and in an alphabet by title reference to the author, an enterprising and useful piece of work. "The American Catalogue, 1895-1900," also published its author and title part; and Cornell University produced a "Catalogue of its Dante Collection," presented by Willard Fiske, for which the whole world is indebted.

The English contributions to literature were of good average merit, but the year is specially notable for editions of standard authors with scholarly editorial work. Among such authors are Jane Austen, the Brontës, the Brownings, Burns, Byron, Geoffrey Chaucer (also a Student's "Chaucer," edited by Walter W. Skeat), Coleridge, Dickens, Keats, Charles Kingsley, Lamb, Macaulay, Moore, Walter Pater, and several sets of Shakespeare, and of the poetical works of Walter Scott.

"The Transition Period," by George Gregory Smith, dealt with the main European literatures of the fifteenth century; T. S. Ormond's "The Romantic Triumph" will be a work of reference for years to come; and J. Scott Clark wrote a scholarly "Study of English and American Poets." Special critical works were Walter W. Skeat's "The Chaucer Canon;" Walter Raleigh's "Milton;" Charles Grosvenor Osgood's "The Classical Mythology of Milton's English Poems;" Goldwin Smith's "Shakespeare;" E. Hershey Sneath's "The Mind of Tennyson;" Mrs. Meynell's "John Ruskin;" William J. Peddicord's severe criticism entitled "Rudyard [Kipling] Reviewed;" and Le Gallienne's "Rudyard Kipling," with a bibliography by John Lane. L. Cope Cornford wrote an essay toward a just appreciation of "R. L. Stevenson;" and the first part was issued of "Stevensoniana," a reprint of various literary and pictorial miscellany associated with the author and his work. Excellent histories of "Russian" and of "Sanskrit Literature" were added to the fine series of Literatures of the World. Bibliographies of "Izaak Walton," of "Dickens," and of "Thackeray's Contributions to Punch" appeared. There were no less than ten editions of "Omar Khayyam," chiefly of the Fitzgerald translation, to which there was also a "Concordance," by J. R. Tutin, and there was a "Life of Fitzgerald," mentioned elsewhere.

Two very valuable works are F. Somner Merryweather's "Bibliomania in the Middle Ages," and Isaac Myer's "Oldest Books in the World." There were also four scholarly books on Indian and Syriac sacred manuscripts.

Two new translations of the "Complete Works of Balzac" made their appearance, and also an edition of "Tolstoi's Works" in 12 volumes, edited by Nathan Haskell Dole.

SCIENCE.

A notable contribution to Science is R. L. Garner's "Apes and Monkeys, their Life and Language," with introduction by Edward Everett Hale. Prof. Garner lived in a cage in the forests and gave himself up entirely to the study of these links between man and the brutes. William Andrews gave a learned explanation of the "Diuturnal Theory of the Earth," or Nature's system of constructing a stratified physical world; William Leighton Jordan offered some well-received "Essays in Illustration of the Action of Astral Gravitation in Natural Phenomena;" John Couch Adams published his "Lectures on the Lunar Theory;" and a translation was published of Carl Schoeppfer's "The Earth Stands Fast," a 19th century contradiction of the theory for which Galileo died. Three very important volumes were devoted to Toadstools, Mushrooms and America Fungi; and there were four books on the "Nature and Culture of Belgian Hares."

Henry Smith Williams wrote an exhaustive review of "Nineteenth Century Science," and Edward W. Byrn studied "The Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century." One of the best thought out and most practically executed works of the year in this department was George Iles' "Flame, Electricity and the Camera," describing man's progress from the first kindling of fire to the wireless telegraph and the photography of color. S.

A. Bottone wrote a volume on "Wireless Telegraphy;" and there were many books on automobiles, telephones and the different electric inventions of later years.

A specially important work of applied science was William E. Smythe's "Conquest of Arid America," by a man who is a recognized authority on the science of irrigation, which when perfected will make America a self-feeding country for all time to come.

There were several volumes devoted to studies of birds, trees, fish and other objects of nature, all of which may be found classified under their subjects in the index elsewhere in this issue.

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

The most important travels described in the books of the year were by water. The first volume appeared of "The Norwegian North Polar Expedition in 1893-1896," edited by Fridtjof Nansen, and dwelling specially upon the scientific results of these great exploring expeditions. Dr. Frederick A. Cook described the voyage of the "Belgica" to the South Polar regions in "Through the First Antarctic Night, 1898-1899;" and Antarctic voyages and explorations were also told by George Barnett Smith in "The Romance of the South Pole." Joshua Slocum in "Sailing Alone Around the World" gave a delightful account of his reflections and experiences during 46,000 miles of water travel and complete isolation on the sloop "Spray;" and William Henry Johnson wrote a volume on "The World's Discoverers" and what they have endured to benefit their fellow-men.

The Workmans in "The Ice World of the Himalayas" have furnished the scientific world with the results of their travels and investigations; Frank G. Carpenter in "South America, Social, Political, and Industrial," described a 25,000 mile journey in search of information; and Rev. Stephen Denison Peet studied the traces of "The Cliff-Dwellers and Pueblos." Theodore Andrae Cook gave in "Old Touraine" the life and history of the famous chateaux of France, and Richard Sudbury went over the same ground in "Two Gentlemen in Touraine;" Clifton Johnson led his readers "Along French Byways," and illustrated his word pictures; Anna Bowman Dodd told of "Falaise, the Town of the Conqueror;" and the Blashfields wandered through "Italian Cities."

The Paris Exposition called forth upwards of thirty books, and many descriptions of London, Berlin and other cities and places in the regular line of travel for sight-seers appeared in regular progression. The illustrations in most descriptive works throw many of this class in the department of Fine Arts, and some specially artistic works will be found there.

ART BOOKS AND WORKS ON ART.

Charles Dana Gibson has his own faithful following and in nowise disappointed them with his holiday offering entitled "Americans," in which there were ninety of his latest sketches and cartoons, displaying the artist's delightful sense of humor as well as his exquisite skill in drawing beautiful American women. A. B. Wenzell's holiday volume "The Passing Show" contained artistic reproductions of wash drawings giving glimpses of many of the fads and fashions of the closing century. A handsome art work in three volumes was Joel Cook's "America, Picturesque and Descriptive," with seventy-five large photogravures of the most celebrated places of the land, offering in popular form a comprehensive knowledge of this vast country. It is perhaps matter for regret that a foreigner should have been the first to scale the highest mountain in Alaska, but the account of "The Ascent of Mount St. Elias," by the Duke of Abruzzi, is a wonderfully handsome book and a distinct contribution to the literature of exploration. "Atwood's Pictures" giving an artist's history of the last ten years of the nineteenth century struck the note of humor so generally absent from the best work of the year.

Dutch art was put within the reach of many in Max Rooses' third series of "Dutch Painters of the Nineteenth Century;" and he also did fine editorial work on "Fifty Masterpieces of Anthony Van Dyck," selected from the pictures exhibited at Antwerp in 1899 in celebration of the 300th anniversary of the birth of Van Dyck. Lionel Cust also made "A Historical Study of Van Dyck" which made a sumptuous art work. A volume on "Dürer" was added to the deservedly successful Monographs on Artists. A rich contribution to art literature was "William Hogarth's Works" in three volumes with life and anecdotal descriptions of his pictures; and equally beautiful and valuable was Sir Walter Armstrong's "Sir Joshua Reynolds," with seventy photogravures and many lithographs in colors. Edward S. Prior produced a "History of Gothic Art in England," and the year was rich in minor contributions to the study of historic art.

Music is more and more studied in the United States and books of great musical value were Charles A. Lidgley's and Chamberlain's "Wagner;" James Huneker's "Chopin," with fine bibliography; C. F. A. Williams' "Bach," also with valuable bibliography; and James William Buel's "The Great Operas," a superb work of art published at the prohibitory price of $1250.

Works on "Oriental Rugs" and on "Pottery and Porcelain" will take their place among the permanent additions to the collectors' sources of knowledge. Several valuable works on "Manuscripts" may be looked for under that heading in the list elsewhere.

The drama received its full quota of books, among which the more notable were Clement Scott's "The Drama of Yesterday and To-Day;" Edward Robins' "Twelve Great Actors" and "Twelve Great Actresses," and several biographies of living actors and their present work, among them Ellen Terry, Henry Irving, Mary Mannering, Maude Adams, John Drew, The Kendals, and Mrs. Fiske. There were also two volumes devoted to the men and women celebrated in light opera and musical comedy in America.

Among the gorgeous importations of Goupil & Co. were Pierre de Nolhac's "Louis xv. et Marie Leczinska;" Andrew Lang's "Prince Charles Edward," and the annual volume of "The Salon." An art work was also made of Hans Christian Andersen's "Fairy Tales and Stories," a monumental work gotten up for the approaching centennial of the author's birth with illustrations by Hans Tegner, the most distinguished of living Danish artists, who has worked on these pictures for eleven years. The originals are to find a permanent place in the Museum at Copenhagen.

REPORT OF THE REGISTER OF COPYRIGHTS FOR 1899-1900.

THE copyright business and the work of the copyright office for the fiscal year from July 1, 1899, to June 30, 1900, inclusive, is summarized by Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyrights, in the Report of the Librarian of Congress, presented November 23, 1900, as follows:

RECEIPTS.

The gross receipts during the year were $71,072.33. A balance of $1999.61, representing trust funds and unfinished business, was on hand July 1, 1899, making a total of $73,071.94 to be accounted for. Of this amount $6384.15 was refunded, having been sent to the copyright office as excess fees, or as fees for articles not registrable, leaving a ret balance of $66,687.79. The balance carried over July 1, 1900—representing trust funds, $934.38, and unfinished business, $551.91—was $1,486.29, leaving for fees applied during the fiscal year 1899-1900, $65,201.50, and for fees applied which were received in the copyright office prior to July 1, 1897, $4.50, making a total of $65,206.

Of this sum $65,206, representing applied fees, $65,193 was paid into the Treasury by weekly checks, credit was allowed for $4.50 applied as fees, and $8.50 refunded, out of fees received prior to July 1, 1897.

COPYRIGHT ENTRIES, ETC.

The total number of entries of titles during the fiscal year was 94,798. Of this number 86,438 were titles of productions of persons citizens or residents of the United States, and 8360 were titles of productions of persons not citizens or residents of the United States. The fees for these entries were: United States, $43,219; foreign, $8360, or a total of $51,579.

Of the foreign entries, 2176 were with certificates, as well as 21,894 of the United States entries, or a total of 24,070 certificates, at fees amounting to $12,035. In addition, 1192 copies of record were furnished at fees amounting to $596; 898 assignments were recorded and certified at a charge of $980, and search fees charged to the amount of $16. The details of the copyright office business and applied fees are set out in Exhibit C.

COPYRIGHT DEPOSITS.

The various articles deposited in compliance with the copyright law, which have been receipted for, stamped, credited, indexed, and catalogued during the fiscal year amount to 141,444 (a gain of 21,301 over the previous fiscal year), and these articles are classified as follows:

COPYRIGHT CATALOGUE AND INDEX.

The titles filed for record are carefully indexed, each entry having a card under the name of the proprietor; and books, periodicals, dramatic compositions, and maps have, in addition, title or author cards. These index cards, numbering 122,148 for the fiscal year, become part of the permanent indexes of the copyright office, and are also used as the copy for the "Catalogue of Title Entries" required to be printed weekly by the act of Congress of March 3, 1891 (Fifty-first Congress, second session, chapter 565). The articles enumerated in the preceding paragraph were catalogued during the fiscal year, and the catalogue printed in four volumes, as follows:

	Pages.
Volume 20, third quarter of 1899, 13 numbers .....	901
Volume 21, fourth quarter of 1899, 13 numbers .....	938
Volume 22, first quarter of 1900, 13 numbers .....	1,009
Volume 23, second quarter of 1900, 13 numbers .....	1,127

In all 3975 pages of octavo print.

There is a steady increase in the amount of the copyright business from year to year, but the growth during the last fiscal year has been exceptional. The total entries (94,798) as compared with the total entries of the last fiscal year (80,968) show a gain of 13,830 entries, or a little more than 17 per cent. This growth in the entries is a nearly exact index of the increase in the whole work of the copyright office. While there is an increase in the total copyright business from year to year, it fluctuates greatly from month to month and from day to day, and this great variance from one day to another is one of the difficulties to be met in the administration of the office. The least number of entries made on any one day during the fiscal year 1899-1900 was 99, while the greatest number of entries made on any one day reached the sum of 3788. The next lowest number of entries was 115, and the next highest number of entries in any one day was 946.

The applied fees for this fiscal year ($65,206), as compared with the applied fees for the previous fiscal year ($58,267), show a net gain in fees paid into the Treasury of $6939 for the fiscal year. A comparison of the applied fees for the last three fiscal years is shown in Exhibit F.

The number of articles deposited increases steadily from year to year, the grand total for this fiscal year (141,444) as compared with the last fiscal year's total (120,143), showing an increase of 21,301 articles. In Exhibit G will be found a comparison in detail of articles deposited to complete copyright for the three fiscal years, 1897-98, 1898-99, 1899-1900, showing the increase from year to year in each class.

The principal things to be accomplished in the copyright office are: (1) Prompt recording and acknowledgment of remittances received; (2) posting into proper ledgers and accounting for the different classes of fees, so that the weekly payment of applied fees into the Treasury can be accurately made; (3) passing upon applications, writing the necessary letters of explanation in relation to informal applications, and returning excess fees and remittances which cannot be applied as fees; (4) stamping the titles accepted for record, with date, class designation, and copyright number; (5) indexing the titles filed for record; (6) stamping, acknowledging, crediting, and cataloguing the articles deposited; (7) recording the titles filed and making out, revising, and mailing the copyright certificates.

At the date of this report, November 23, 1900, the various divisions of the copyright office work have been carried forward four additional months beyond the fiscal year, the fees applied and paid into the Treasury from January 1 to October 31, 1900, amounting to $55,791, and the entries made to 82,064.

The exact status of the copyright office work at this date (November 23, 1900) is as follows:

1. All remittances received have been recorded and acknowledged to November 22, inclusive.

2. The account books of the bookkeeping division are written up and posted to November 17, and the accounts rendered to the Treasury Department are settled up to and including the month of October.

3. Copyright applications received up to and including November 20 have been passed upon, and refunds made up to November 17. The total unfinished and pending business from July 1, 1897, to November 17, 1900, amounts to $479.13.

4. The titles filed for record (all classes) are dated, classified, and numbered to November 17, inclusive.

5. The titles filed are indexed as follows: Class A, books and plays, to November 12, 1900; Class B, periodicals, to November 16, 1900; Class C, music, to November 10, 1900; Class D, miscellaneous, to November 9, 1900.

6. The articles deposited are stamped, catalogued, and credited as follows: Class A, Books I, to November 2, 1900; Books II, to November 8, 1900; Books III, to November 8, 1900; Class B, periodicals, to November 23, 1900; Class C, music, to October 10, 1900; Class D, miscellaneous, to October 4, 1900.

The Catalogue of Title Entries has been brought forward another volume, vis., volume 24, for the third quarter of 1900, 1172 pages; and Nos. 1 to 7 of the new volume, 25, for October 4 to November 15, 1900, have been printed.

7. The certificate entries have been recorded, all classes, to November 16, inclusive, and certificates made, revised, and mailed; while the certificates for November 17, all classes, have been made and revised, and are ready for signature and mailing.

The non-certificate entries have been recorded as follows: Class A to November 8; Class B to November 14; Class C to November 15; Class D to November 7, inclusive, leaving to be entered, to and including November 23, 432 entries. Class A; 62 entries, Class B; 192 entries, Class C; 509 entries, Class D, or a total of 1195 entries.

The following bulletins of the copyright office were printed during the year:

The Copyright Law of the United States of America, in force July, 1900. Fourth edition, revised. Washington: Government Printing Office, 1900. 30 pp. 8°. (Bulletin No. 1.)

Directions for the Registration of Copyrights under the Laws of the United States. Third edition, revised. Washington: Government Printing Office, 1900. 36 pp. (Bulletin No. 2.)

ing the public and private copyright laws [etc.] Washington: Government Printing Office, 1900. 83 pp. (Bulletin No. 3.)

Congress, in the appropriation act of April 18, 1900, provided a special force of three clerks, a porter, and a messenger boy for bringing up the arrears in the copyright office work.

Although only a few months have passed since this appropriation became available good service has been rendered, enabling the office to eliminate the principal arrears in current work, and also to make a good beginning in the work of properly arranging the material prior to July 1, 1897. Of the great mass of copyright deposits from July, 1870, to July, 1897, estimated at perhaps 200,000 articles—books, maps, engravings, etc.—all the books have been arranged by years, and the books and pamphlets for the years 1870 to 1880, numbering 33,116 volumes, have been transferred to the new shelving provided in a permanent storage location and there properly arranged. In addition, about 22,000 maps, engravings, photographs, etc., have been classified and arranged.

Of the titles filed prior to July 8, 1870, 60,719 (nearly the whole collection) have been arranged between boards especially provided for the purpose, properly lettered, and tied up and filed away.

The consolidation of the old and new indexes has been carried out to the letter H, inclusive, 201,100 cards having been cut and alphabetized. This becomes the general alphabetical index to all the copyright entries since July 8, 1870, numbering up to the end of September, 1900, 1,171,521.

A certain quantity of the uncredited deposits between 1890 and 1896 has been credited, but it has not been practicable to keep an exact account of the number of these articles. All the uncredited material has been roughly assorted, and 720 books and pamphlets have been subjected to the necessarily slow process of examination with the indexes and have thus been disposed of.

FRENCH BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1900.

THE Bibliographie de la France, in its issue for December 29, 1900, gives the following totals of the number of books, musical compositions, engravings, etc., published in France during 1900. The number of books recorded was 13,362, or 377 more than published in 1899. The number of musical compositions recorded was 5910, showing an increase of 149 over those published the year before. The number of engravings, lithographs and photographs recorded was 952, or 171 more than in 1899.

AMERICAN BOOK AUCTION SALES IN 1900.

ACCORDING to L. S. Livingston, the compiler of that excellent handbook, "American Book Prices Current," published by Dodd, Mead & Co., "the number of books sold at auction in the United States seems to be increasing year by year. In the volume for 1900 9662 lots of books and autographs are recorded, which is by far the largest number recorded in any volume since the beginning of the work. It is, in fact, more than 50 per cent. in excess of the number of sales recorded in the initial volume published six years ago, which was only 6025.

"These 9662 records were selected from something over 113,000 lots, described in 164 catalogues, representing 279 days' sales. The New York auctioneers generally hold but a single session each day. Occasionally, however, they hold two sessions, as is done also generally by the auctioneers of Boston and Philadelphia. Of the 279 days on which sales took place, two sessions were held on 61 days. The total number of sessions, therefore, was 340. In 1899 the total number of lots was about 102,000, but the number of catalogues was only 117 and occupied only 250 days' sale. It would seem from this that, on the average, the sales in 1900, though more in number, were individually of less consequence, and this no doubt is the case. The library of Augustin Daly comprised in its two catalogues 5263 lots. Aside from this one great sale there have been no first-class sales during the season. By far the majority of the catalogues described books that were brought together from various sources, or consigned by booksellers here or abroad, and are designated as 'Miscellaneous Collections.'

"The most important sale of the season—indeed, for several seasons—was that of the library of the late Augustin Daly, sold at the American Art Galleries the last of March. The sale of the art objects, books, and manuscripts occupied ten days of two sessions each. The library was primarily dramatic in character, but rather as a history of the stage than as a collection of the works of the great dramatists. No attempt had been made at bringing together a series of the early quarto editions of the separate plays of the English dramatists, nor were there even early collected editions of these writers, nor, indeed, generally even modern editions. Shakespeare was an exception. Mr. Daly owned good copies of the four folios, and a number of sets of the author's works in various editions. Of early quartos, there was only one, a copy of the second edition, 1631, of 'Love's Labour's Lost.'

"On the other hand, the collection of material relating to the English stage, particularly as exemplified in the lives of its great players, was remarkable. The majority of the extra-illustrated books—and these must be considered the characteristic pieces of the collection—were of this character. The prices brought by some of these masterpieces of extra illustration seem stupendous to the uninitiated; but they were generally, probably in every case, much less than their original cost. When scarce prints and autograph letters, worth separately from fifty dollars to several hundred dollars, are inserted lavishly in a work, the total soon runs well into the thousands for a single book. His great copy of Peter Cunningham's 'Nell Gwynn,' inlaid from 12mo to folio, and extended to four volumes by the insertion of extra matter, brought $4300. The copy of Ireland's 'Records of the New York Stage,' inlaid from 8vo to folio, and extended from two volumes to forty-nine volumes, brought $6125. These were the two items of this character bringing the highest prices, but a number of other pieces of similar character brought upward of one thousand dollars.

"Among the extra-illustrated books, not dramatic in character, the most notable was the great Bible, extended to forty-two volumes, large folio. This brought $5544. His famous copy of Spence's 'Anecdotes,' in four volumes, brought $3800. Forster's 'Life of Dickens,' extended from three to nine volumes, with Dickens's 'Letters,' extended from two to eight volumes, brought $2200, and an additional volume, uniformly bound, of autograph letters to and from Dickens, brought $610 more. Brotherhead's 'Lives of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence,' with autographs of all of them, including a signature of Thomas Lynch, brought $4650. His copy of Boswell's 'Johnson' and 'Johnsoniana,' together forming nineteen folio volumes, and containing a wonderful lot of original Johnson manuscript, brought $2965.

"Of early English books besides the Shakespeares already mentioned, there were only a few, the most notable being Milton's 'Paradise Lost,' first edition, 1667, the variety with Milton's name in small type on the title-page (the variety with the name in large type is, we believe, generally considered the earlier, and is certainly the rarer), a very fine copy in the original sheep, which brought $460, and a copy of the first edition of Milton's 'Poems,' 1671, also in the original sheep, which brought $490. A fine copy of the first edition of Burton's 'Anatomy of Melancholy,' 1621, brought $160, a good copy of Spenser's 'Faerie Queene,' first three books, 1590, brought $290, and a copy of the second edition, with the first edition of books four to six, all ever published, two volumes, 1596, brought $225.

"Of first editions of modern nineteenth-century authors, the only collections worthy of mention in this connection were those of Dickens, Lamb, Scott, and Thackeray. A start had been made towards sets of a few other authors, such as Tennyson, Longfellow, etc., but they did not generally include any specially rare items. The sets of Dickens and Thackeray were very extensive, including most of the first-class rarities, all of which brought good prices. The second-rate, commoner books of these authors, with few exceptions, brought little more than the cost of the binding. This was largely because the most careful collectors now demand that, when first editions are bound, they must include all the original covers, advertisements, etc., which the book had when first issued. The series of first editions of Lamb was quite extensive, though not as complete as the Dickens and Thackeray. It did not contain Lamb's first book, 'Rosamund Gray,' but did the even rarer 'Poetry for Children.' This latter, two little volumes, in very good condition, brought $2220, an astonishing price, even considering the great rarity of the book. Mr. Foote's copy brought $420 in 1895, which was then generally thought to be an extravagant price. A copy lacking nine leaves, which were supplied from the reprint, which was sold at Sotheby's in 1899, brought only £4 4s., and the late Mr. Tuer's copy, also imperfect, sold at Sotheby's in July of last year for £81. A copy of volume II. only, in the original binding, was offered by a London bookseller at £20. The series of first editions of Scott included a complete set of the Waverley Novels, all in the original boards, uncut. The 'Waverley' in this set was the famous copy which brought £150 at auction in London last summer.

"The library of the late Charles S. Richmond, of Brooklyn, was sold by Bangs in three sales which took place September 13-15, 25-27, and October 2-5, 1899. The collection included few rare books, but contained a good selection of miscellaneous books in various classes, especially travel and history.

"The library and collection of autographs belonging to the late Thomas Donaldson were sold by Mr. Henkels in two sales, October 23-24 and 26. The books were of less interest than the autographs. Among the latter were included a number of fine Civil War letters, some of them 'autograph copies' of world-famous letters and orders, and a quantity of Whitman autographs, being the original manuscripts of a number of his published poems and prose pieces. The most valuable piece of the collection was a copy of the Thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution, with autographic signatures of Abraham Lincoln and the other signers. A reserve price was put upon this item, but no bid reaching the amount, it was not sold and hence does not appear in our record.

"The collection of Americana, formed by Mr. William Clogston of Springfield, Massachusetts, was sold by Libbie, November 14-16, 1899. It was especially rich in books relating to Vermont, and to the city of Springfield, Massachusetts.

"Mr. Henkels had a series of minor sales from January 30 to February 3. These included the libraries of James H. and Nellie Shakespeare; Thomas Paxson Clive (including several important extra-illustrated books); Albert W. Slee, of St. Louis (voyages and travels, etc.); a collection of autograph letters belonging to the late Rev. Richard Kaines, of Lykens, Pennsylvania; and a collection of material brought together by Washington G. Craddock, for extra-illustrating Irving's 'Life of Washington.'

"A part of the library of the late Justin Winsor, Librarian of Harvard University, and author of many books on American History and Bibliography, was sold by Libbie, February 20-21. It was, however, mainly his working library.

"The library and art collection of the late Carl Edelman, of Philadelphia, was sold by the American Art Association, March 7-10. The books included a number of rarities, among them first editions of the Brontës, Lamb, Keats, Hardy, George Eliot and others, and nearly complete sets of the publications of the Grolier Club and the Kelmescott Press.

"The library of Mr. Christian P. Roos, made up largely of first editions of American authors, was sold by Bangs, March 12-13. This was Mr. Roos' second collection, the first having been sold at Libbie's, in April, 1897. The books sold at Bangs' had been mostly purchased since that sale. The lot included a number of the rarer books of Bryant, Emerson, Hawthorne, Longfellow, Lowell, Whittier, and others. The books were mostly in good condition and many brought record prices.

"The very large collection of Trials and Legal Literature brought together by John H. V. Arnold, was sold by Bangs, April 23-26. While there can be no question as to the rarity of many of the books offered, few brought high or even moderate prices, and, while the collection of trials was a very remarkable one, there was apparently slight interest in them as such.

"The library of George H. Mackay, of Nantucket, was sold in two sales by Libbie. The first, comprising mostly first editions of American authors, was sold on April 25-26, and the second, largely made up of books on Nantucket, Whale Fisheries, etc., was sold May 2-3.

"The library of the late William F. Poole, Librarian of the Newberry Library of Chicago, was sold by Libbie, May 9-10. It was mostly a working library, but included some rare books. The most notable item, perhaps, was an original copy of the famous 'Ordinance of 1787.' This was one of the early copies, printed, probably, for the Committee, before the last Article was added.

"A few other named sales took place, but the books were generally of comparatively slight importance. As shown by the record, the books printed at the Kelmescott Press have been increasing in price perhaps more rapidly than those of any other class. Besides the collection included in the Edelman sale, a complete series was offered by Bangs, in their catalogue of April 16-18, and a number of volumes were offered in other sales.

"In this volume are recorded for the first time the sales carried on under the management of Mr. John Anderson, Jr. While Mr. Anderson has been in business as a bookseller in New York for a number of years, he has just entered the book auction business. His first sale took place on February 6, 1900."

The increasing interest in those single sheet publications known as "Broadside," especially those relating to American history, and the difficulty of classifying them as "books," has induced Mr. Livingston this year to give a small selection of such pieces in a separate section of his record, following the books and preceding the autographs.

The antagonism at first displayed against this invaluable compilation by booksellers has nearly, if not quite, vanished. It is now recognized that such a work stimulates collecting, and so indirectly, if not directly, helps the intelligent dealer. The fact that the work is published by one of the most important dealers in rare books might long ago have opened the eyes of their rivals to its helpful rather than baneful influence on book collecting and bookselling.

ENGLISH BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1900.

FROM the following table, prepared by the London Publishers' Circular, it will be seen that there is a reduction of 218 in the past year's production of new books in England as compared with 1900. The output is 428 less than it was in 1897. Works directly on the Boer war number 197 for the year—102 for the last six months. Works on war in general, by land or sea, and on South Africa, or people connected with it, are large in number. Perhaps more than 300 books have been suggested to their publishers or their writers by the present war. Probably, then, the publication of general works has been at least 500 less than in 1899, and more than 700 less than in 1897. But the fall is not in every class of book. The numbers have increased in politics and commerce, including South African politics and commerce; in voyages and travels, including voyages to and travels in South Africa; in history and biography, including South African events, territories, races, and notabilities; in year-books; in medicine and surgery, including malarial medicine and military surgery; in arts and sciences, including the science of war.

ENGLISH BOOK SALES OF 1900.

THE last year of the nineteenth century, according to J. H. Slater in the London Athenaeum, will be remembered by those who are interested in such matters as being, on the whole, one of the most unsatisfactory of our own time so far as the sale of books is concerned, although it is possible that the first year of the new century may prove to be worse. It is true that extremely scarce, and consequently desirable and expensive volumes of a certain kind have brought the same large prices as heretofore, but they have been comparatively few in number, their owners having preferred to wait rather than to run the risk of placing them on a falling market. The war is, of course, responsible for much in this matter, and it is worthy of note that during the whole of January not a single important collection was seen in any of the sale-rooms. That was a month of unsatisfactory excursions and frequent alarms—a very dismal period, when all sorts and conditions of men pored over the newspapers and gave books the cold shoulder, to their bane. It is possible, though not probable, that the war may also be responsible for the extraordinary backsliding of many books, pamphlets, and even leaflets which presumed to be fashionable in more peaceful days. What, for example, has happened to the Badminton Library of Sports and Pastimes that "Shooting" in such an excellent series should drop from £9 10s. to £4, and almost every other book—"Hunting" not excepted—suffer in the same proportion? That the Davos-Platz brochures and several of Mr. Kipling's less important works should fall from the extremely high pinnacle on which they had been placed is a matter for no surprise, since they were curiosities and nothing more; but the Badminton Library has earned for itself a position second to none, and was considered to be stable enough. When "School-Boy Lyrics" dropped from £135 to £90, and then to £40 odd, finally eclipsing itself by touching the bottom at £3 5s., many people smiled and were glad, while one or two tried to explain the circumstance away by drawing distinctions between the copies sold, their condition, and so forth, not realizing that it is just these distinctions that are the very life and being of the fanciful, not to say ridiculous prices that are sometimes paid for trifles of absolutely no importance whatever. No author suffers in reputation merely because his early and immature works fail to maintain an inflated price, though when all that he has written experience a like fate he may well begin to consider. The real work of Stevenson is judged at the same high level now as ever, and the same remark applies to the real work of Mr. Kipling. It is the trifles that have gone wrong—the "Marguerite, Lawks! what a beautiful flower," and other playthings which were never intended to be but what they are. It is not to be expected that these remarks will convince everybody that it is dangerous to pay very high prices for the productions of any living author, however eminent he may be, but such is certainly the case. There is always the risk of copies being held back till the market shows signs of being at fever heat, and then being let loose, as it were, to play havoc with the average. In the case of the Kelmscott Press books, to mention one of a number of series, there is no such risk, for everybody knows how many copies are extant; and the same remark applies to books from the Vale Press, which many will be sorry to see are fast becoming very expensive indeed. The Kelmscott books are, on the whole, stationary for the moment: books containing inscriptions in the autograph of their authors, English classics of the eighteenth century, and works of the old dramatists and poets, are rising in value rapidly. Eighteenth-century art and illustrated books, especially those of French origin, in old bindings, are becoming very difficult to procure, and these also are of much greater value now than they were a few years ago; and the same remark applies, naturally enough, to old works classed as "Americana" and the productions of the early printers of our own and other countries. These are always in request, and there seems to be no limit to their eventual cost; indeed, it looks as though they will shortly be unprocurable at any price. . . .

"The last century, by the way, is the second during which at least three of the firms of literary auctioneers have been in existence. Good books of the most desirable class are scarcer than they have ever been, but for all that the new century will probably be middle-aged at least before the great public libraries here and in America wholly cease from troubling the honest bookman whose contemplative soul is with Caxton and De Worde. Yet for him there is more than hope. He may safely exult in the certainty that every one of the new institutions of this kind which may rise out of the mist of the twentieth century will have to be satisfied with facsimiles and reprints. In time they may grow rich and great, but no matter. They will have been born too late."

POLYGLOTTA TOLSTOYANA.

P. DRAGNOW, in commemoration of the anniversary of the seventieth birthday of Count Lyof Tolstoy, and anticipating the near approach of the jubilee of the celebrator author's literary activity, has prepared a monograph entitled "Polyglotta Tolstoyana," in which he notes the translations of Tolstoy's works into forty different languages and dialects. The Greeks were the first to become acquainted with Tolstoy in 1870. Next came the Slavs, in 1876; (3) the Servians, in 1877; (4) the French, in 1877; (5) the Magyars or Hungarian, in 1878; (6) the English, in 1879; (7) the Danish, in 1879; (8) the Czechs, in 1881; (9) the Germans, in 1882; (10) the Bulgarians, 1884; (11) the inhabitants of Russia Minor, 1884; (12) the Swedes, 1885; (13) the Finns, 1885; (14) the Armenians, 1885; (15) the Carpathian, 1886; (16) the American, 1886; (17) the Dutch, 1887; (18) the Italian, 1887; (19) the Croatian, 1887; (20) the Karelians, 1887; (21) the Georgians or Grusians, 1887; (22) the Sardes, 1887; (23) the Norwegians, 1888; (24) the Spaniards, 1889; (25) the Esthonians, 1889; (26) the Lettes, 1890; (27) the Lithuanians, 1890; (28) the Poles, 1891; (29) the Portuguese, 1892; (30) the Turks, 1894; (31) the Roumanians, 1894; (32) the Arabs in the Syrian dialect, 1894; (33) the Slovenes, 1895; (34) the Wends, 1895; (35) the Chinese, 1895; (36) the Tartars in the Caucasian dialect, 1896; (37) the Japanese, 1896; (38) the Hebrews in the vernacular, 1897; (39) the Circassians, 1897; (40) the Portuguese-Americans, 1899; (41) the old Hebrew, 1899. Germany heads the list with 218 translations and dissertations on Tolstoy; France comes next with 159; the Czechs with 141; the Slavs with 82; England with 75; Serbia with 69; Bulgaria with 66; Spain with 38; Sweden with 34; America with 32; Denmark with 27, and so on in the descending scale until the figure one is reached. The author admits that it was impossible in many cases, notably in Germany and other countries, to obtain full and reliable data, and that therefore the statistics possibly understate rather than exaggerate the number of translations.

PROFESSOR ELISHA GRAY died suddenly on the 21st inst., at Newtonville, Mass. Professor Gray, who was one of the best known of the electrical inventors of the day, was born at Barnesville, O., August 2, 1835. He published a work on "Experimental Researches in Electro-Harmonic Telegraphy and Telephony," and a series of volumes entitled "Familiar Talks on Science."

The son achieved distinction as an author by the publication of his contributions to the Revue des Deux-Mondes under the title of "Moral and Literary Studies" and "Questions of Religion and History." His most important work was the "History of the Christian Church and the Roman Empire in the Fourth Century." He was received as a member of the Academy in 1863. He succeeded to his father's title and estate upon the latter's death in January, 1870. Since that time he has taken part in the political affairs of the country as a leading member of the National Assembly. He was for a time head of the Cabinet of Marshal MacMahon. His later literary work includes the following: "Divine Liberty and Human Liberty," "Secret Correspondence of Louis xv. with His Diplomatic Agents," "Frederic II. and Maria Theresa," "Memoirs of Talleyrand," "Society of the Abbey Saint Germain, After the Eighteenth Century."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Nineteenth Century, beginning with the current issue, will be entitled The Nineteenth Century and After. The title will bear a design, drawn by Sir Edward Poynter, bearing two faces backing each other. One face, that of an old man, looks toward the left, where are the Roman numerals XIX., while the face of a youth gazes toward the right, where are the numerals XX.

The Anglo-Saxon Review, published in England by Mrs. Cornwallis-West, whose former name, Lady Randolph Spencer Churchill, is still attached to the Review, will hereafter be handled in this country by G. P.

Putnam's Sons. The price has been reduced from $6 a copy to $1.50, and yearly subscriptions from $24 to $6. The form of the quarterly will continue to be small folio, bound in specially designed leather.

THE special mid-winter number of The Studio, published by John Lane, is devoted to "Modern Pen Drawings—European and American," and is edited by Charles Holme. The British pen drawings, represented by fifty-six specimens, are described by J. M. Bulloch; the American section, represented by twenty-seven drawings, is described by Ernest Knauff; the French section, with nineteen drawings, is described by Gabriel Mourey; the German section by Dr. Hans W. Singer; the Belgian section by Fernand Khnopff; the Danish by Georg Bröchner; the Dutch, by E. Becht; the Finnish, by Count Louis Sparre; and the Swiss, by Robert Mobbs. The number contains 216 pages, of which 144 are full-page drawings, a number of which were drawn specially for this number, or are printed for the first time.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

GEORGE BARRIE & SON, Philadelphia, will issue Balzac in French, in a style conformable to their English edition, and at the same price.

J. F. TAYLOR & Co. have in preparation a series of volumes of "The World's Best Essays," edited by Justice David J. Brewer, assisted by Prof. Edward A. Allen, William Schuyler, and an advisory council, composed of well-known American and English men of letters.

WM. F. DOWELL, for many years exchange editor for the Harper periodicals, and engaged in perfecting lists for local advertising in the country papers, has started an Authors' and Publishers' Press-Clipping Bureau at 70 Fifth Avenue, New York, making a specialty of his lists in promoting circulations.

R. A. EVERETT & Co., 42 Essex Street, Strand, London, will shortly publish a little work entitled "Dopes," a criticism of American arts and English efforts by Nathaniel Gubbins, who, it is said, "brings a long experience to bear on what may be called the inner life of the turf and its various developments."

THE BROTHERS OF THE BOOK, Gouverneur, N. Y., announce that owing to the increased business duties of their Scrivener, Mr. Laurence C. Woodworth, whereby he has been able to devote but little time to the affairs of the Brotherhood, they have been obliged to postpone the publication of "Some Children's Book-Plates," by Wilbur Macey Stone, but hope to have the edition ready by the last of February.

THE SPANISH-AMERICAN DIRECTORIES CO., 149 Broadway, New York, will publish early in February an "Official Commercial Directory, for 1901, of the entire West Indies, including Cuba, Porto Rico, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, Bermuda, the Bahamas, Barbados, Jamaica, Caicos and Turks Islands, the Windward Islands, Trinidad, Tobago, the Leeward Islands, Guadeloupe, Martinique, St. Thomas, St. Croix, St. John and Curaçao."

GEORGE E. GRIMES, Nantucket, Mass., has in preparation a reprint of "The Globe Mutiny," by William Lay, of Saybrook, Conn., and Cyrus M. Hussey of Nantucket. It is a narrative of the mutiny on board the ship Globe of Nantucket in the Pacific Ocean, in January, 1824, including a journal of a residence of two years on the Mulgrave Islands. The authors were the only survivors of the massacre of the ship's company by the natives.

A. N. MARQUIS & Co., Chicago, Ill., have in preparation a new edition of their valuable biographic handbook entitled "Who's Who in America." The book will be enlarged by from two to three thousand names; inaccuracies in the first issue will be corrected and some unimportant names dropped. A new feature of the book is the addition to the personal sketches of authors of the date of publication of each book and the name and address of its publisher.

THE CORNHILL PRESS, 69 Cornhill, Boston, Mass., announces an edition limited to 300 copies of Lady Dilke's "The Shrine of Death" and "The Shrine of Love," two stories first issued as the title stories of two volumes published in London, one in 1886, the other in 1891. Very few copies of these collections of stories reached America. The little volume which will now make them known will be a small quarto printed in red and black on Arnold hand-made paper from types of a bold Roman face. There will be a specially designed frontispiece for each story with borders and initials drawn to conform with the type pages. The book will be bound in paper boards.

LOESCHER & Co., of Rome, Italy, have recently acquired a collection of upwards of one hundred letters written by Jenny Lind from 1845 to 1874 to an old and very intimate friend in Germany. The letters are written in German and contain a mass of unpublished details concerning the artist's life and work in Europe and America during the period in which the letters were written. Her opinion of the persons with whom she came in contact, notably of the Prince of Prussia, afterward William I., the grandfather of the present German Emperor, Liszt, Meyerbeer, Johanna Wagner, Robert and Clara Schuman, Mendelssohn, Garibaldi and others are said to be of special interest. The letters will very likely be published in the near future.

THE Tägliche Rundschau of Berlin reports that, through the intervention of Prof. Ernst Elster, Dr. Hans Meyer, of the Bibliographische Institut of Leipzig, secured from the widow of Heinrich Heine a large mass of valuable literary remains, fully 1500 pages, in the handwriting of the poet himself. In these papers are found the originals of a number of Heine's leading works. Especially valuable, however, as supplying new data and details for the poet's career, is a series of more than 1000 letters, addressed to him by prominent contemporaries, such as Laube, Varnhagen, Rahel, Robert Schumann, Meyerbeer, Hillier, Lewald, Count Auersperg, and the members of his own family. In a new critical edition now in preparation of the works of Heine, the editor, Professor Elster, proposes to make good use of these finds.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have in preparation a Personal edition of the works of George Eliot, with biographico-critical introductions by Esther Wood, whose name is familiar to readers of The Studio and other art magazines. The edition will be in twelve volumes, divided as follows: Volume I., "Life of George Eliot" and "Scenes of Clerical Life;" Volume II., "Adam Bede;" Volume III., "The Mill on the Floss;" Volume IV., "Romola," (Part I.); Volume V., "Romola," (Part II.) and "Silas Marner;" Volume VI., "Felix Holt, Radical;" Volumes VII. and VIII., "Middlemarch;" Volumes IX. and X., "Daniel Deronda;" Volume XI., "Essays;" Volume XII., "Poems." They have also in press "The Adventures of John Smith," based on historical records, by Miss Katherine Pearson Wood, and a volume entitled "Good Form for All Occasions," by Mrs. Kingsland.

The News Chronicle, which aims to furnish condensed record of the news of the world, makes its first appearance for January, 1901. It is devoted to news summaries for the month of December, 1900, arranged chronologically by day and date, with sub-arrangement first by foreign and then of American general and local items. The summaries give in condensed form the salient happenings of the day, in national and local politics, drama, art, literature, business and crime. They are preceded by a full topical index, alphabetically arranged, and in appendixes are given announcement of future events, and record of stock exchange transactions, weather conditions, new corporations established, racing results, etc. The magazine contains about 90 pages and is well printed, with a neat cover. It is published by The Epitome Publishing Co., 251 William Street, New York, at $5 per year or 50 cents per single copies.

CONSTITUTIONAL HISTORY

OF THE

UNITED STATES

ILLUSTRATED WITH MAPS

WITH AN ANALYTICAL TABLE OF CONTENTS AND AN INDEX

By FRANCIS NEWTON THORPE, Ph.D.

Author of "Constitutional History of the American People,"

(Sometime Fellow and Professor of American Constitutional History in the University of Pennsylvania, 1885-1898.)

THREE OCTAVO VOLUMES
CLOTH, . . . $7.50 NET

This exhaustive work is the result of the continuous labors of more than twenty years, and is based upon the primary sources of information. It is a biography of the American National System of Government, and undoubtedly is the most complete narrative of our national constitutional history which has yet appeared.

The variations in the treatment of their theme by these great authors indicate strong differences in their works. Mr. Thorpe's books present in a calm and philosophical manner the orderly development of our constitutional system. Von Holst's work is a master's series of studies of political motives and actions, while Tucker's work presents a great study in the law of the Constitution. Not one of these masterpieces in Constitutional literature conflicts with the others.

AMERICA: PICTURESQUE AND DESCRIPTIVE

By Joel Cook, author of "England: Picturesque and Descriptive," etc. Illustrated with Seventy-five Photogravures from Original Negatives. 3 volumes, crown 8vo, cloth, full gilt, gilt top, with cloth jackets and in a cloth box, list price, $7.50; three-quarters calf, gilt top, $15.00; Edition de luxe, limited to 150 copies, net, $15.00.

"America: Picturesque and Descriptive" presents in an interesting form such a knowledge as the busy reader would be pleased to have in one comprehensive view of the history, geography, picturesque attractions, productions, peculiarities and salient features of this great country, not only as a work of reference and a work of art, but as a book of readable interest as well. Especial care has been taken with the photogravures that illustrate it, and it is a sumptuous work of art as well as an entertaining and valuable work in the letter-press.

PALESTINE: THE HOLY LAND

By John Fulton, D.D. Crown 8vo, cloth, gilt, gilt top, with 30 full-page photogravures and a map, list price, $3.00; full polished calf, gilt edges, $7.00.

In our regular Photogravure Series, uniform with Cook's "America," "England," etc. It will fill a want that has long existed for a readable and compact, as well as comprehensive volume upon the Holy Land. Dr. Fulton's reputation as a Biblical scholar ensures the value of the book, and his terse and attractive writing makes a very readable book.

FAITHS OF FAMOUS MEN

By John Kenyon Kilbourn, D.D. Large crown 8vo, cloth, gilt top, list price, $3.00.

This important work comprises, in their own words, the religious views of the most distinguished scientists, statesmen, philosophers, rulers, authors, generals, business men, liberal thinkers, leaders of religious denominations, etc., etc. These have been taken from published works, from letters, and in some few instances—as with ex-President Cleveland, who personally wrote what he wished included; or the Rev. Dr. Storrs, who, before his death, selected what he wished to represent him—the selections have been made by the writers themselves.

NOTABLE BOOKS

Bergen's Foundations of Botany

By JOSEPH Y. BERGEN, Instructor in Biology in the English High School, Boston. For introduction, $1.50.

The "Foundations of Botany" is sufficient to prepare for any college or university which accepts botany as an entrance requirement. It is not intended to take the place of the "Elements of Botany," which has come to be the most widely used text-book on the subject in the higher schools and academies, but to offer a more extended and comprehensive course for schools that wish to devote an entire year to the subject. It represents the latest and most advanced methods of botany teaching, combining a standard text liberally illustrated with a complete course in laboratory work and a key for the study of systematic botany.

Foundations of French

By FRED DAVIS ALDRICH, Master in Modern Languages at Worcester Academy, and IRVING LYSANDER FOSTER, Instructor in Romance Languages in the Pennsylvania State College. For introduction, 90 cents.

This book has been prepared especially for beginners, both in secondary schools and in the freshman year at college, and can be completed in from forty to sixty hours and allow the use of an easy reader. In the method of presentation, practical class-room considerations have everywhere been kept uppermost.

Myers' Rome: Its Rise and Fall

A Text-Book for High Schools and Colleges. By P. V. N. MYERS, recently Professor of History and Political Economy in the University of Cincinnati. Illustrated. For introduction, $1.25.

This book has been written in response to requests from many teachers that the author expand his little text-book on Roman history into a more extended account of Roman affairs.

This GUIDE is a most valuable tool for every Book Seller, for by a moment's reference he can tell a customer the Best Books on almost any subject, and be reasonably sure that the price is correct besides.

The volume also contains a BOOK RECORD in which may be recorded the data, comment, etc., of books read. 12mo, limp cloth, round corners. Price, $1.25. Send stamps for Sample Copy, postpaid, to any Book Seller for 75c. Special discount on 25 copies.

YE GODS AND LITTLE FISHES. A Travesty on the Argonautic Expedition in Quest of the Golden Fleece. By JAMES A. HENSHALL. One volume, crown 8vo, cloth, decorated, with cover design, frontispieces, borders and versal letters by J. S. Ludlow, net, $2.00.

A witty, humorous, satirical, political and philosophical account of the voyage, exploits and adventures, by sea and land, of Jason and his sixty demigods, in their Quest for the Golden Fleece. The route, and the events and incidents of the expedition from Thessaly to Colchis, and the return voyage, as chronicled by Apollonius Rhodius, are followed, but narrated from a modern standpoint.

RECOLLECTIONS OF A LIFETIME. By GENERAL ROELIFF BRINKERHOFF. One vol., 8vo, 448 pages, cloth, $2.00.

"General Brinkerhoff was the close friend of Stanton, Chase, and Blaine. He knew Lincoln, Grant, and Garfield intimately. He was a schoolmate and lifelong friend of Roscoe Conkling. But it is his record of events prior to the war, when he was still a young man in his teens, that General Brinkerhoff is even more interesting than in his story of the more bustling events in which he always took a more or less active part."—New York Sun

MOOREHEAD'S PREHISTORIC IMPLEMENTS. A Reference Book of all the Weapons, Ornaments, Utensils, etc., of Ancient Man in the United States. 8vo, over 400 pages, with 500 illustrations, cloth, net, $3.00.

This volume of over 400 pages contains 500 figures illustrating some 3000 different stone, shell, clay, bone, copper, and flint relics of all known forms and types. As has been set forth in previous circulars, it is an illustrated catalogue, and is published as an aid to students and collectors in classifying and naming exhibits or individual specimens.

EAST TENNESSEE and the CIVIL WAR. By HON. OLIVER P. TEMPLE, author of "The Covenant, The Cavalier, and The Puritan." One vol., 8vo, cloth, net, $3.50.

"This volume will, we believe, be accorded a place among the most important original interesting contributions to American history. While written in the dispassionate and impartial tone of a jurist, the narrative rises to an interest that is stirring and thrilling."—The Interior, Chicago.

SHAKSPER NOT SHAKESPEARE. By WILLIAM H. EDWARDS, author of "Voyage on the River Amazon," "The Butterflies of North America," etc. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

"Shaksper not Shakespeare, that is, that William Shaksper was not the writer of the Shakespeare poems and plays. He revels in old documents and contemporary records. He accumulates such a formidable array of facts, literary, biographical, and historical, that it seems to need a giant to hurl the pile to the ground. . . . The time has gone by when a mere shrug of the shoulders or the utterance of the word 'Nonsense' can be regarded as sufficient to overthrow the immense pile which the anti-Shakespeareans have so carefully and patiently constructed."—Birmingham (Eng.) Gazette.

SONGS OF AMERICAN DESTINY. A Vision of New Hellas. By WILLIAM NORMAN GUTHRIE. Decorated by L. H. Meakin. 8vo, 212 pages, printed on hand-made paper, deckle edge, limited to 500 numbered copies, decorated cover, $2.50.

"One of the most remarkable volumes of poetry published in America for many years. . . . Mr. Guthrie's theme is lofty ideal and his treatment is thoroughly unique. His use of new and free metrical forms is inspiring bold, and some of his lyric work strikes us as being masterly in rhythmic execution."—The Churchman, New York (PROF. W. P. TRENT).

THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE of books in print and for sale July 1, 1876, compiled under the direction of F. LEYFOLDT, and its supplements, 1876-84, 1884-90, 1890-95, and 1895-1900, compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER, aims to present all the bibliographical features of the books in the American market, arranged in the first part alphabetically by both authors and titles, and in the second part alphabetically by subjects.

The Catalogue and its supplementary volumes form the only approximately complete guide in existence to the American books of the day, so arranged as to make reference easy from whatever direction the inquiry may come, whether from that of the author, or the title, or the subject. It not only furnishes the desired information about any particular book of which the consulter is in search, but shows what others there are by the same author or on the same subject in which he is interested. To the bookseller, therefore, it is valuable both in filling orders and in stimulating business; to the librarian, in supplying gaps and proportioning his collection; and to all who are practically concerned with books, in furnishing information which nowhere else is obtainable by so convenient a method, if obtainable at all.

The author-and-title volume of the 1876 volume is out of print. A limited number of the subject volume may be had in half leather binding at $15.

The volume covering the period 1876-84 is also out of print.

A Story of English Society of To-Day.

THE
SACRED FOUNT

By HENRY JAMES.

12mo, $1.50.

MR. JAMES, in this new novel, presents a remarkable series of character studies of a group of English men and women who meet for a week-end party at an English country house. A striking study of contemporary English social life, this story represents Mr. James at his best. It will be read with interest both for the picture it affords of English society of to-day, and for the masterly portrayal of character in which the author excels.
